SMOCK MARRIAGES.

Instances in Maine of a Custom That Prevalled in England a Century Ago.

A Bangor lawyer attending court, in the ancient town of Wiscasset, Me., went rummaging recently in the colonial court records of the place and in the course of his reading ran across the official registration of a "smock marriage." Not knowing what sort of marriage that was he looked further and got considerable light upon a custom that prevailed in England a century or two ago and also to some extent in the American colonies.

Smock marriages were weddings where the bride appeared dressed in a white sheet or chemise. The reason of such a garb was the belief that if a man married a woman who was in debt he could be held liable for her indebtedness if he received her with any of her property, and also that if a woman married a man who was in debt his creditors could not take her property to satisfy their claims if he received nothing from her. In England, says an antiquarian, there was at least one case where the bride was clothed puris naturalibus while the ceremony was being performed in the great church at Birmingham. The minister at first refused to perform the ceremony, but finding nothing in the rubric that would excuse him he married the pair.

To carry out the law fully as the people understood it the ceremony should always have been performed as it was in the Birmingham church. But modesty forbidding, various expedients were used to accomplish the desired purpose and yet avoid the undesirable features. Sometimes the bride stood in a closet and put her hand through a hole in the door. Sometimes she stood behind a cloth screen and put her hand out at one side, again she wound about her a white sheet furnished for the purpose by the bridegroom, and sometimes she stood in her chemise or smock. Eventually, in Essex county at least, all immodesty was avoided by the bridegroom's furnishing to the bride all the clothes she wore, retaining title to the same in himself. This he did in the presence of witnesses, that he might prove the fact in case he was sued for any debts she might have contracted. A marriage of this kind occurred at Bradford in 1789, and the following is a true copy of the record of the same:

BRADFORD, Dec. 24, 1789.
This may certify whomsoever it may concern that James Bailey of Bradford who was married to the widow Mary Bacon Nov. 23 last past by me as subscriber then declared that he took the said person without anything of us late and that Lydia the wife of Elazer Burbank & Mary the wife of Thomas Stuckney & Margaret the wife of Caleb Burbank all of Bradford were witnesses that the clothes she then had on were of his providing & bestowing upon her.

WILLIAM BALCH, Minister of the Gospel.
It is noted by the same writer that in all cases of smock marriages that have come to his knowledge the brides have been widows.
It is thought that during the reign of George III there were many smock marriages in Maine, then a part of the province of Massachusetts Bay, chiefly in Lincoln and York counties or in the territory which is now so known. There is nothing to show that the practice outlived the Revolution. In Maine up to 1852 a husband was liable for debts of his wife contracted before marriage, and no such subterfuge as the smock marriage could relieve him.—New York Sun.

CURIOUS STATISTICS.

What a Healthy Man Consumes in Seventy Years of Life.

Taken all in all, a healthy man with a good appetite and moderate thirst consumes in 70 years 90½ tons of solid and liquid foods. If the consumer weighs, say, 150 pounds, he will eat and drink during his lifetime 1,280 times his own weight. Transforming all this foodstuff into mechanical labor, the strength derived would be sufficient to lift 87,000,000 tons one foot from the ground or to raise the Forth bridge at Edinburgh, which weighs 264,600,000 pounds, to a height of 1,285 feet.
Excluding the first 20 years of a lifetime, the quantity of cigarettes consumed by a regular smoker who smokes a dozen every day would in 50 years reach the number of 219,000, or a monster rolled cigarette more than 16 feet in length and about 5 feet thick, beside which the tallest man would resemble a veritable dwarf. A cigar smoker consuming six of his favorite brand a day would during his lifetime smoke a gigantic cigar of more than 16 feet long and almost 2½ feet thick. It would weigh 4,410 pounds and would take the suction power of a steam engine to puff it.

As the smoking habit is not necessary to existence it is easily seen how much money a smoker wastes in the course of years. A pipe smoker consumes in his lifetime a half ton of tobacco.—New York Herald.

The Cave Dweller as an Artist.

We must remember that there are no such things as lines in nature. Whether we use them to represent a human profile, the depth of a shadow, the darkness of a cloak or a thundercloud, they are mere conventional symbols. They were invented a long time ago by a distinguished sportsman who was also a heaven born amateur artist—the John Leech of his day—who engraved for us (from life) the picture of a mammoth on one of its own tusks. And we have accepted them ever since as the cheapest and simplest way of interpreting in black and white for the wood engraver.—George du Maurier in Harper's Mag.

Quick Fingers.

The dexterity of a modern virtuoso's fingers made a deep impression on an old farmer who was among the audience at a "piano recital." Clapping both hands suddenly down upon his knees, he was heard to exclaim, "I'd give $100 to have that man pick peas for me!"—Troy Times.

The Trans-Mississippi and International Congress is composed of delegates from every State and Territory West of the Mississippi river. The idea of this exposition originated in that Congress at its session at Omaha in 1895, and the project has become a National enterprise and the National Commission has been organized and is in active service, there being one commissioner for each of the several departments of the Government. Most of the Trans-Mississippi States are well along in the way of gathering exhibits from their respective States and many of them have made liberal appropriations, while others are preparing exhibits through private enterprise.

Vice-President H. B. Maxson of Reno, has made arrangements whereby he can get Nevada exhibits, shipped from any point in the State along the line of the C. P. R. R., to Omaha and return, and he requests all persons who wish the interests of the State advertised, to co-operate with the Exposition County Commissioner of his county, whose name is shown above, and prepare some product of his county and send it to the nearest point on the C. P. R. R. from which place it will be sent to Omaha and exhibited, and return to the same point at the close of the exposition, free of expense to the exhibitor. Full information should accompany everything sent for exhibition. Before sending anything to the line of the railroad a full description should be given to the Exposition Commissioner of the county, who in turn will notify the Vice-President, who will notify him what action to take, otherwise there might be many duplications. Apply to your County Representative for further information, and don't let this opportunity of advertising the resources of Nevada be lost.

RELATIVE RANKS IN THE ARMY AND NAVY.

As people in these war times are interested in everything pertaining to military and naval affairs the following may not be out of place:

A regiment of artillery consists of twelve batteries of six guns each; a regiment of cavalry is composed of twelve troops two or more of which form a squadron; a regiment of infantry consists of twelve companies, four of which form a battalion. The relative rank of the officers of the army and navy and the divisions in the formation of these two branches of the service are as follows:

A General, or Commander-in-Chief in the army corresponds to the rank of Admiral or vice Admiral in the navy; a Lieutenant-General to a Rear Admiral; a Major-General to a Commodore; a Brigadier-General to a Captain; a Colonel to a Commander; a Lieutenant-Colonel to a Lieutenant-Commander; a Major to a Lieutenant; a Captain to a Master; a First Lieutenant to an Ensign; a Second Lieutenant has no corresponding rank in the navy.

Squad—A subdivision of the company, commanded by a Sergeant or Corporal.

Platoon—Half a company, commanded by a Lieutenant.

Company—Not more than 100 men, commanded by a Captain.

Battalion—Four companies, commanded by a Major.

Regiment—Three battalions, commanded by a Colonel.

Brigade—Two or more regiments, commanded by a Brigadier-General.

Division—Two or more brigades, commanded by a Major-General.

Corps—Two or more divisions, commanded by a Lieutenant-General.

Squadron—A detachment of a fleet employed on any particular service.

Fleet—A large number of war vessels under one commander.

WAR NEWS, CONDENSED.

United States vessels made an attack on Cienfuegos on the south coast of Cuba driving back the Spanish forces, and demolishing the defenses. The Americans succeeding in cutting the cable connecting Havana with Santiago de Cuba. The fight was terrific. The Spanish loss is estimated at 400 and that of the United States four killed and four wounded. The town was set on fire by the shells from the American vessels.

A dispatch from Cavite to Madrid gives the Spanish loss; killed 300 wounded 600. The report claims the Spanish were betrayed and their shells would not burst. It is also admitted that Admiral Dewey has full control of the situation.

War rumors are freely circulated regarding England and France and it is claimed that a clash will occur within a month.

Favorable dispatches are published at Madrid concerning the victories of Spanish vessels and the capture of Americans while the Spanish loss is represented to be light.

It is rumored that the President will issue a call for 100,000 volunteers.

No official report has been received at Washington of the surrender of San Juan and the rumors are not credited in the departments. News from Sampson is anxiously awaited.

The White Squadron is at sea and is believed to be looking for the Spanish fleet and will reinforce Sampson.

The Spanish fleet is reported off the coast of Venezuela going west, having left Martinique hurriedly and had steamed 800 miles in two days. The Oregon has been warned to look out for the Spanish fleet.

War Reminiscences.

Now that we are engaged in another foreign war it may be interesting to review the conception of the war of 1812, which was our latest trans-Atlantic conflict, says "Martel" in the Concord, New Hampshire, Monitor. The attack made on the Chesapeake by the British frigate Leopard in 1807 was an outrage which awoke almost as much indignation as the destruction of the Maine. The Chesapeake surrendered, being utterly unprepared for action and having lost several men by the British broadside. In addition to this outrage were the British depredations on American commerce, and hence Madison determined to keep our ships at home and Congress ordered the embargo, which was very unpopular and soon repealed. The nation then saw that war was inevitable, and this measure found its leading congressional supporter in Henry Clay, Speaker of the House. Its chief opponent was John Randolph, both Virginians by birth, but tremendously antagonistic.

The war discussions in Congress were conducted with closed doors and reached the climax in June, 1812. Randolph tried hard for delay until October, but the question was pressed and the war bill was carried by a majority of thirty in the House and six in the Senate.

Madison was noted for the elegance of his official papers in which, indeed, he has never been excelled. His war proclamation is probably the finest specimen and rings with such patriotic eloquence that it seems appropriate to the present day. Hence we offer an abstract:

"With such an alternative war was chosen. The appeal was made in a just cause to the just and all powerful Being who holds in his hands the destiny of nations. It remains only that faithful to our friends and ever ready to accept peace from the hands of justice we prosecute the war with united councils and with ample powers of the nation until peace be obtained under Divine blessing."

How appropriate these utterances to the present day. Madison lived to see the beneficent result of the war and this experience will no doubt be repeated in President McKinley.—Ex.

B. F. Leste,

The New Orleans Times Democrat says that a woman with her colored maid was recently traveling on a train. When the train started, the girl appeared to be in a fever of excitement. The conductor, the push seats of the car, the agents from the window—everything was of absorbing interest. To the surprise of her mistress, S. Hie, when food was offered her, refused to eat. An hour or two went by, and a sandwich was again offered to her, but she still refused. "What is the matter, Sallie?" asked her mistress. "Are you sick?" The girl rolled up her eyes ecstatically. "Oh, no, missus," she answered, "I ain't sick; but I can't eat when I'm trabbelling! It's too joyful like!"

A Fad Party.
The Monday Night Club, composed of about twenty-five ladies of Reno who have spent the Winter in literary work and the study of literature, held the closing meeting of the year Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Webster. Each member was asked to wear her fad and as they appeared much mirth was created. There were some too deeply imbued with the practical side of life to indulge in such frivolities. Among the most decided and conspicuous fads was one young lady who appeared with a string of bottles containing homeopathic pellets. We will leave her for Dr. Lewis to take charge of. One young lady closely connected with one of the banks of Reno let all know that her early years of training had done their work and to that she is true to her State; her regalia was of silver dollars. One displayed her liking for souvenir spoons. Two or three lovers of flowers were present. As on all occasions the "kodak fiend" was there. The young lady of shirt waists made known her weak point by covering her dress with colored plates of shirt waists. A bouquet of bachelor buttons was worn by one, but they were not meant to be suggestive at all, they are positively her favorite flowers. The collector of curios was on hand. She wore Indian relics and gifts of the sea, another a collector of Oriental fans, and the club woman was not wanting; little black clubs cut from cards bedecked her costume. The book lover wore books galore. The gardener carried a bouquet of the tops of her favorite vegetables, tied with wide white ribbon from which hung long streamers. It was made more grotesque by her being attired in a white silk party dress. The admirer of pets was there with her cat. The fastidist on reading articles aloud carried her magazine. A program of music interspersed with reminiscences and future predictions of the club was an enjoyable feature of the evening.
When the dining-room was reached, Dewey's victory was again brought to mind. The decorations were made up of "Old Glory" and all received a small flag on which was printed "Dewey, May 1, 1898." A number of toasts were responded to in a pleasing and humorous way.
The authors who had been studied and reviewed during the year were again enjoyed through an interesting game in which all represented some author and were to learn, from others in the room who knew, who they were. After a wave of the flag and three cheers for the host and hostess the company bade good night.

OFF FOR THEIR REGIMENT.
Nevada Troop, Second United States Cavalry Volunteers.
According to previous arrangements, in which Colonel A. A. Evans took an active part, the G. A. R. veterans, Company C and Signal Corps and the University Cadet Corps marched to the depot last evening to receive Nevada Troop, Second United States Cavalry Volunteers, and with the people of Reno, to bid them Godspeed on their journey to Cheyenne, where they will join their regiment. Long before the arrival of the V. and T. a great crowd of people had gathered at the depot to welcome the boys and see them off on their journey eastward. The time between trains would not permit of the parade through the streets that had been planned, so the line was formed and counter-marched on Commercial Row, finally halting on Center street opposite the Palace Hotel. Professor John Edwards Bray called the assemblage to order with a few appropriate remarks and introduced Hon. F. H. Norcross, who, in a patriotic and feeling manner, addressed the boys on their duties to their country and their State, and concluded by saying that all believed that they would go forward to their duty bravely and in time return bearing laurels of which the State they represented, could well be proud.
Rev. F. O. Lee was then introduced and made a short speech, every word of which was in praise of and encouragement to the Nevada Troop. The east-bound train pulled in, the assembly call was sounded on the bugle, hurried goodbyes were said, words of encouragement spoken, a strange mael gathered in many eyes, the rough sleeves of a coat would be drawn across the face, a sob choked back and the "all aboard" of the conductor, and the train slowly pulling out carrying the Nevada Troop eastward added another as well as a pathetic incident in remembrance of the Maine.
The Coming Event.
Chas. F. Becker, of Reno, paid Carson a visit yesterday in the interests of the Reno Wheelmen, the promising social and athletic organization of his city comprising one hundred and eighty gentlemen of that place, who are great enthusiasts of sport and especially that of cycling.
The Reno Wheelmen have perfected all arrangements for a meet with the Olympic Club of San Francisco for a relay race of 50 miles, to be held at the Fair Grounds in Reno on Sunday, May 22nd. Mr. Becker while here will perfect arrangements to run a special from Carson and Virginia at a low rate for the accommodation of all who wish to attend. Full particulars of the affair will be published the first of the coming week. The popularity of both clubs is well known to all lovers of the sport and as both clubs are out for honors it is a certainty that a hotly contested race may be looked for. Our people will be more than pleased to hear of this attraction as it will afford a fine opportunity to visit Reno, witness an excellent days amusement, don the "maroon and white," and cheer our home boys, who are worthy of all attention and courtesy that may be paid them. Remember the date, Sunday, May 22nd.
Discovered by Woman.
Another great discovery has been made, and that too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose, that she slept all night; and two bottles, has absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz. She writes H. C. Hamrick & Co of Shelby N. C. Trial bottles free. S. J. Hodgkinson's Drug Store Regular size 50c and $1.00 Every bottle guaranteed.
Will be Heard From.
Will David, formerly of Carson, also of the Reno Tribune, and now a member of the cavalry troop, has been engaged by the Carson News as correspondent. The JOURNAL has also arranged with a couple of the volunteers to write a letter now and then regarding the movements and general happenings directly connected with the Nevada boys and the letters will be published so that Nevada may hear of the doings of her boys at the front.
The Olympics of San Francisco are to have a bicycle race with the Reno team in a few weeks. Stanley, the Nevada boy, will be with the Olympics probably.—News.
Stanley will be with the Reno Wheelmen. He is a member of that club and is now in Reno training for the race.

FIRST NEVADA CAVALRY TROOP.
Men Being Enrolled for Service Now.
A distinctively Nevada cavalry troop is now being organized at Carson. It is designated by the War Department, "First Troop, Nevada, United States Volunteer Cavalry." It may be assigned to duty at Manila. The requirements for enrollment in the troop are the same as in other volunteer cavalry troops. Men must be not less than 18 and not over 45 years of age and physically sound. This rule applies to officers as well as enlisted men. The men should be good riders and fair shots.
The Kindergarten Tea.
One of the pleasant events of the year was the annual Kindergarten Tea given yesterday afternoon in the Kindergarten rooms. It was an appropriate ending to the years work and a joyous opening for the vacation just at hand. The large room, where the "Senior" Kindergarteners hold sway was used as the reception room. Besides the artistic and beautiful decorations which have recently been placed there, the season's flowers were in abundance. The refreshments were served in the smaller room, the realm of the wee tots. This room shows that the little hands have been very busy. Woven mats, chains, and circles are everywhere. The refreshments were served in an entirely informal manner and added hospitality to the occasion. Miss Nichols, assisted by a number of ladies received the guests and Miss Edmunds and Miss Wright were assisted in serving, by young ladies prettily gowned in summer attire.
The money raised was for the purpose of paying off the remaining indebtedness on the piano. The attendance was large and a neat sum realized.
The affair was a decided success both socially and financially. It is a worthy cause and the JOURNAL is pleased to add its meed of praise to the good work. Too much credit cannot be given to Miss Nichols and her worthy assistants for the excellent and thorough management of this branch in Reno's school system.

An Illustrations Example
In his proposition to raise a regiment and to pay each member of the regiment out of his own pocket John Wanamaker has followed an illustrious example, says the Cincinnati Times-Star. Some time before the breaking out of the War of the Revolution a meeting of various colonial delegates was called in a Congress in Boston. It was assembled on September 5, 1774. In their meeting were Thomas Lynch of South Carolina; Peyton of Virginia; Richard Henry Lee, William Livingston, John Jay, John Adams, Christopher Gadsden, Robert Treat Paine, Patrick Henry, Samuel Adams and thirty other rugged patriots from the various colonies who sat as delegates. Back near the wall sat a man, in the prime of life, who at morning prayers stood half a head above his neighbors. His face was broad, his mouth tightly closed, which during the fourteen days of that Congress, is said not to have been opened but once, and then only to second a motion. It was towards this man that M. Lynch pointed when, making a burning speech he said: "There sits a man who has not spoken here once, but in the Virginia Assembly he made the most eloquent speech I ever heard when he said: 'I will raise a thousand men and arm and march them to the relief of Boston.'" When Lynch paid this tribute the tall man is said to have blushed like a school girl. That tall man was George Washington. Mr. Wanamaker evidently has been reading history to a purpose.—Ex.

A Trophy.
The citizens yesterday subscribed to fund to purchase a trophy for the victors in the fifty-mile relay race which is to come off next Sunday. The committee selected a beautiful silver water pitcher and it is now on exhibition at Richard Herz. If the Olympic boys carry it away they carry with it the best of feeling of all Reno for the victors and if our Wheelmen win, it will be given a prominent place in the Wheelmen's Club-rooms.
Annual Meeting.
The Reno Water, Land and Light Company held its annual meeting yesterday. The following were elected Trustees: C. O. Powning, C. Kaiser, H. M. Gorham, Oscar Smith and W. L. Bechtel. CHEATED AT POKER.
A PAGE FROM THE UNWRITTEN HIS-TORY OF A UNIVERSITY.

Punishment Meted Out to a Dishonest
Student by Society and the Faculty—A Young Man Who Kept Step With His
Not Brilliant Antecedents.

"Talking about poker," said a middle aged man to a coterie at Chamberlin's, "reminds me of something that occurred about 20 years ago at the University of Virginia. That was about the liveliest epoch in the history of the university since the war, or for that matter of that before it, when the life led by the students is taken into consideration. There was a big crowd of devil may care young men there, most of them with plenty of money, and they made Charlottesville and surrounding Albemarle fairly hum. These kindred spirits formed a society which took the name of 'Eli Bananas.'"

Here the speaker smiled at evidently amusing reminiscences. "There is no telling what the 'Eli Bananas' didn't do. For the quintessence of mischief and devilment they took the laurels.
There was nothing downright bad about them, but their antics were awful. Fantastic were the tricks they played and grotesque their jokes. Between freaks the Eli's were prone to poker, and it was customary down there for the players to assemble at this or that student's room. That brings me to my story. One coterie of poker players comprised sons of some of the best known and wealthiest men in the south, and into it was introduced a young Virginian who was gifted with many attractive traits apparently, but whose antecedents were not particularly brilliant. I'll call him Dick Lark, but that wasn't his name.

"Most of the other fellows in the coterie had roommates who were boning up for the final examinations. It was well along in the spring, and Lark had quarters to himself on East Lawn. Consequently the poker began to be played exclusively in his room. When the evening seemed propitious, the word would be passed around at supper that 'three Kentuck' would be in order, and at 8 o'clock or thereabout the players would assemble at Lark's. Lark's luck was stupendous. He won steadily, and as the game was pretty stiff his winnings were substantial. It was noticed after awhile that he always passed out when somebody had a particularly big hand on somebody else's deal, but that he always held a top hand when there were big ones out against each other on his own deal. Then somebody noticed that the seals were always broken on the half dozen new decks of cards provided each night before the game began and that Lark in dealing always closely scurtized the cards as he gave them out.

"At last one night the son of a famous Confederate general who now lives in Baltimore became convinced that Lark was cheating. Picking up the deck that Lark had just dealt and out of which he had got a hand with four queens against an ace full held by a young Kentuckian the young man said quietly:

"Some one is cheating at this game, and, Lark, I think it's you."

"Now, at the University of Virginia such a declaration, if improved, meant somebody's death to a certainty, and in an instant the party was on its feet.

"Just wait a minute, gentlemen," said the accuser quietly. "I've been watching this man. Let some one examine the backs of these cards with this magnifying glass."

"The Kentuckian took the glass and closely scanned the geometrical designs on the backs of the cards.

"By Caesar!" ejaculated. "Every card is distinctly marked!" Examination by the other players quickly proved the truth of this.

"There was a consultation over what should be done with Lark, who stood with head hung down, overwhelmed with the proof against him. It was decided that he was not worth calling out, as he was not a gentleman, and the verdict was that he should make restitution of all the money he had won since his participation in the game and suffer ostracism in the university. He was compelled to sit down and write out a check for all the money he had won, the memorandum books of the other players showing the amounts they had lost at various times, and he was kept under surveillance until the Charlottesville bank, in which he kept a heavy account, opened next morning. One of the party rode down to Charlottesville and cashed the check, and then the sentence of ostracism went into effect.

"That fellow had the unheard of efrontery to remain at the university until the finals were completed. He was there six weeks. No student or professor or servant or townsmen, no man or woman, white or black, spoke to him or took any notice of him. He attended the final balls, and no one recognized him.
He was not quizzed in a lecture room or addressed by a professor. Still he remained until the university closed for the season, but he might as well have been in the middle of the Sahara desert so far as intercourse with people was concerned."—Washington Star.

The Cache in Alaska.
The settlements along the Yukon are few and far between and consist, for the most part, of the same elements.
There are the company's store; the huts and tents of the natives; the crowd of howling dogs; salmon hanging in red strips, burnished with copper tinges in the sun; little tots of children; chattering women offering baskets, moccasins and trinkets for sale, and here and there perhaps a squad of uniformed children, marking the work of some mission-good looking, clean looking children, but, whether Christianized or not,
spoiled for living like natives again.
The problem is, What is to become of them? Along the banks are occasionally met the rude huts and tents of small parties of Indians come hither to cut wood for the boats or to fish, but, however simple the habitation, it must always have the cache, or storehouse, propped upon posts to keep the supplies out of reach of the dogs, for these dogs can bite through a tin can and almost climb a greased pole in search of food.
The cache should have a place on the oat of arms of Alaska. It is universal.

The Real Truth.
Some people deceive themselves with the notion that if they have been denied some advantage which another has had the only dignified course for them in life is to ridicule that advantage.
"It is a strange thing to me to discover," said Mr. X. to Mr. Z., "that I have wanted a college education all my life, and never have known it until lately."

"What brought it to your knowledge at last?" asked Mr. Z., smiling.
"I perceived that there was a certain bitterness in the light way in which I always said, 'Well, as for me, I'm heartily glad that I didn't go to college.'"—Youth's Companion.
